

"The Right Control for Your Application"

June 11, 2013

Statement on Conflict Materials

This letter serves as a response to your inquiry regarding KB Electronics, Inc. and the "Conflict Minerals" provision of the Dodd-Frank Act.

KB is a privately owned, non-traded corporation and therefore is not subject to the SEC reporting requirements of the Dodd-Frank Act. However, KB does supply products to publicly traded companies that must comply with this directive. We recognize our responsibilities and we only use established industry recognized suppliers and vendors to procure components.

Presently KB is requesting from our suppliers, a declaration that they are exercising due diligence to ensure that there are no "Conflict Minerals" sourced from the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) or any of its contiguous countries, in the components we purchase from them. In common with many other companies involved in tracing the use of "Conflict Minerals" in components that they purchase, it will take time for us to collect this information. Upon discovery that a supplier's components may not be "Conflict Free", KB will implement immediate corrective action.

Sincerely,

Michael Neider
Executive Vice President

If you have any further questions, please contact us by email at info@kbelectronics.com.